

Columbia University's Journal of Politics and Society is currently accepting student papers for publication in our Spring 2013 Journal, and we request your help in passing on our call for papers to your undergraduate students.

We are an academic journal of the social sciences and history, distributed nationally among academics and sold in Barnes & Noble bookstores. In its 24th year of publication, the Journal features exclusively undergraduate work on political and social issues. We are seeking outstanding student research papers from seminars, upper-level electives, independent study and thesis programs.

If you believe your students have produced work which would be suitable for the Journal, it would be greatly appreciated if you would let them know about our call for papers (minimum 15 pages). Please feel free to share this information with your current students as well as those with whom you have worked in the past.

The deadline for student paper submissions is January 1st, 2013. Please find below an announcement that you may send to your students if interested. To download a Call for Papers PDF, please visit: <http://www.helvidius.org/cfp>

If you care to learn more about our organization or to view past editions of the Journal, please visit www.helvidius.org.

Thank you very much for your time and help in this matter. Best wishes for the remainder of the semester!

Sincerely,

Patrick Woolsey

Want an opportunity to GET YOUR RESEARCH IN BARNES & NOBLE AND ON EBSCOHOST?

Columbia University's Journal of Politics & Society, published by the Helvidius Group, invites you to submit your class papers and theses for consideration for our Spring 2013 edition. The Editorial Board is seeking submissions from undergraduates (class of 2013 or later) in colleges and universities throughout the United States as well as the United Kingdom and Australia.

The submission deadline for the Spring 2013 Journal is January 1st.

In 2007, the Journal became the first commercially distributed undergraduate periodical in the nation. The 2013 Spring edition will be distributed among academics worldwide and sold in Barnes & Noble bookstores around the United States.

In addition, the Journal of Politics & Society will award the Peter and Katherine Tomassi Prize of $250 to the author of the best article, as judged by the Editorial Board in conjunction with faculty at Columbia University.

The Journal of Politics & Society is seeking original, creative, and rigorous articles including, but not limited to:

- Research on current economic, political, and sociological phenomena, in any social science discipline as well as certain fields in the humanities such as history.
- Normative scholarship analyzing important theories on political philosophies.

Students from ALL SOCIAL SCIENCE DISCIPLINES are encouraged to submit their work.

There is no absolute length requirement, but published articles are often originally 20 to 50 pages in length (double-spaced). Papers selected for publication undergo an intensive peer review and editing process, and work previously written for classroom or individual use is welcomed.

Please submit all manuscripts online at:

<http://www.helvidius.org/submit/>

Please note that essays submitted directly via email cannot be accepted.
